- Nextlink receives additional orders for its new range of INVISIO consumer headsets from a new European distributor of mobile accessories

Nextlink launched its new INVISIO product line in early October 2007. Nextlink has already during the month announced several larger orders for its new consumer headset INVISIO G5.

This new order is received from a new European distributor of mobile accessories. The total order value amounts to 2.6 MSEK. The products will be delivered during the fourth quarter 2007 and the first quarter 2008.

"We continue to see a strong interest in our new product line of consumer headsets. Our production capacity is now almost fully booked for the fourth quarter and we are happy to receive orders for the coming quarters." says Lars Højgård Hansen, CEO at Nextlink.
