Nextlink receives an order from Canadian Special Forces

- Nextlink receives an order for its INVISIO Pro headsets and PTT's (Push To Talk) from Canadian Special Forces. The order follows a test order received earlier this year.
- The products will be delivered during the fourth quarter

"We are very proud to supply the Canadian Special Forces with our INVISIO Pro headsets." says Lars Højgård Hansen, CEO at Nextlink " We are already today supplying our products to a number of the world's most demanding customers. This order yet again illustrates the high performance that our headsets provides when used in very demanding conditions like high noise, wind and under water"
